

Administrative litigation

Presentation

Administrative litigation is a key component of public law, which is commonly perceived as technical, fast-changing and complex. This class, therefore, aims to present and explain as clearly as possible, and in a synthetic and up-to-date manner, the mechanisms of administrative justice. To this end, the class is structured into twelve lessons during which we will study the following: the administrative courts and their powers; all stages of administrative proceedings, including in the framework of emergency procedures and appeal procedures; State liability due to the deficiencies in the administrative justice system and the alternative methods of dispute settlement.
